Westinghouse Lighting Collaborates with MySchoolLights.com to Provide CFLs for School and Community Fundraisers

Program Raises Funds for Organizations and Promotes Energy Conservation

Philadelphia, Pa. (April 2008) – Westinghouse Lighting announces a collaboration with MySchoolLights.com to supply compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs) for Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) and community fundraisers across the country.

Based in Ambler, Pa., MySchoolLights offers an environmentally-friendly alternative to the candy, food and gift fundraisers found at most schools and organizations.

“We selected Westinghouse Lighting as our supplier because their large selection of CFLs meets a variety of our consumers’ lighting needs,” said Jeff Fread, President, MySchoolLights.com. “Westinghouse’s distribution centers are located strategically across the U.S. enabling us to quickly fulfill orders in any state.”

Schools in Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania are currently participating in MySchoolLights fundraisers. More than 5,000 students will take part in the 2008 spring fundraisers.

“Through MySchoolLights we have an opportunity to reach consumers in a new way that benefits the future of entire communities—schools, households, and the environment,” said Ray Angelo, President, Westinghouse Lighting. “We’re proud to support MySchoolLights' progressive fundraising initiative because it promotes the importance of energy efficiency and environmental awareness.”

MySchoolLights offers an assortment of Westinghouse CFLs that include spiral, spotlight, globe, and standard household shaped lamps. The lamps are priced competitively based on CFL costs at large retailers.
